Resident safety begins with the laundry

Now more than ever, you need a trusted partner to help ensure the health of your patients, residence and staff. Express Laundry and Linen uses an EPA-registered formula which kills 99% of bacteria, including the coronavirus. This process exceeds all current CDC guidelines for eliminating the spread of infection.

There are several key factors in breaking the chain of infection in your facility and it begins with properly collecting, bagging and sorting soiled linens. Ensure that all laundry is treated as if it is contaminated and follow correct handling precautions. Avoid touching your nose, mouth, eyes and face while handling contaminated linens.

When you receive your freshly sanitized laundry, you'll need to be sure you have a safe place to store and cover it. All surfaces touching clean textiles need to be cleaned and disinfected frequently by an EPA-registered hard surface disinfectant. It is important to monitor temperature, humidity and proper coverage to avoid microorganism growth.

In addition to textile hygiene, the disinfection of all hard services and stepped up hand washing can further reduce the risk of transmission. We understand the importance of your needs in providing a safe and healthy environment!
